As you come up Leisure Mountain Road, the road makes a sharp turn to the right before heading into the neighbor's driveway/parking.

In 1982, a gentleman by the name of Royal Scovill owned a tract of land on top of Baird Mountain. He enjoyed hiking to the summit where the views were breathtaking. He would sit for hours watching the hawks glide by and take in the Reems Creek Valley below. One day he made up his mind to share this property with other nature-loving homeowners and the idea for Foxfire Mountain Homes was born.

Foxfire Mountain Homes became a community of eclectic homes, nestled on Leisure Mountain. These homes range from Cottage to Deltec to Modern and all have one theme - they embrace nature. City water and sewer are available and recently the town of Woodfin took over the care of their roads. The community is located off the New Stock exit, south of Weaverville. Everything is convenient from here.

Lot #14 was held back by Royal. He felt this was the premier lot in the development and he wanted to keep it for himself. Many years have passed since then and now the Scovill family is offering Royal's favorite piece of heaven for sale. Surveyed at .87 acres
